Quantum Windows & Doors Names New President Paul Humphreys

Quantum Windows & Doors has named Paul Humphreys as its new President. Humphreys has over twenty years executive leadership experience with manufacturing companies spanning markets that include healthcare, commercial power systems, and contract manufacturing. Most recently Humphreys served for three years as Vice President-General Manager with a manufacturing and distribution company based in Western Washington.

A native of the United Kingdom, Humphreys has extensive experience developing and combining highly effective sales models with innovative new products and services to achieve growth in ever more demanding market conditions. “Paul’s marketing, product development and sales leadership combined with an entrepreneurial business focus are an ideal match for Quantum” commented Edward Stroman, Chairman of the Quantum Board of Directors.

“It’s an exciting time to join the company during its 30th anniversary year; we are entering new markets with exciting new products that will bear Quantum’s unmistakable hallmark,” said Humphreys, “Quantum has an unparalleled reputation for quality, innovation and customer service and I look forward to working with this highly experienced and motivated team.”

Founded in 1982 by local homebuilders in Machias, WA, Quantum is celebrating 30 years of building the finest quality wood windows and doors available in the marketplace. They specialize in custom solutions for residential, commercial and historic projects and are known for their innovative design and superior craftsmanship. Their windows and doors can be found in notable projects across the spectrum of architectural design, from modern to traditional, residential to commercial.
